Investors gear up for the Fed's minutes scheduled to release later this week in order to gauge the interest rate trajectory after some officials made hawkish comments. China's Central Bank in line with expectation has kept the benchmark rates on hold. Britain's retail sales made some recovery even as UK continues to battle high inflation (41-year high). The demand for safe haven weakened. Commodity prices took a beating on the back of subdued demand from China as tighter restriction were imposed once again.

- Barring US and UK markets, other global indices ended lower. Investors turned their focus ahead of the Fed's minutes and for a possible pivot. Investors also monitored tighter curbs imposed in China to manage Covid-19. Amongst other indices, Shanghai Comp (0.6%) dropped the most. Sensex also ended in red led by losses in auto and oil & gas stocks. It is trading further lower today in line with other Asian stocks.
