US macro prints showed another round of weakness with existing home sales print dropping to its 2-year low in May'22. Elsewhere in China, Finance Minister spoke of further stimulus to boost the economy from the reeling crisis. Market is eyeing Fed Chair's testimony for cues on inflation and rates. ECB's Chief Economist stated that a 50bps rate hike might also be possible in Jul'22. JPY dropped to its lowest since Sep'98 on account of widening yield gap with the US and ultra-loose monetary policy. On the domestic front, yields rose by 5bps as crude prices inched up.

- Except Shanghai Comp (lower), other global stocks ended higher led by improvement in global risk appetite. US stocks staged an impressive rebound with both Dow Jones and S&P 500 rising by above 2%. Hang Seng and Nikkei also rose by 1.9% and 1.8% respectively. Sensex rose by 1.8% led by gains in oil&gas, consumer durables and capital goods stocks. However, it is trading lower today, in line with other Asian stocks.
